Pressure mounts on Ford

- Brother Doug calls accusations 'nonsense'
- Mayor's office has his mom talk to media

Why the mayor seems to be shunning occasions involving homosexuals is being debated in many corners of Toronto's gay community as the huge signature Pride festival gets underway.

Rob Ford's office flatly denies that's the case. But his decision to head to his cottage rather than the July 3 Pride parade — with no explanation for the festival's nine other days — coupled with years of brow-raising comments and council votes, has many jumping to conclusions.

Asked Thursday if he will attend any Pride events, the mayor said: "I'll take it one day at a time. My family comes first."

"I told a kid: 'Who's better than you? No-o-o-body! You've got to feel that way about yourself.... That's pride.'"

Experts invited to help solve gridlock

COLIN MCCONNELL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Toronto is inviting world experts on transit and traffic to help find solutions to the city's mounting gridlock and politically-fraught approach to transit expansion.

The best ideas in subway, light rail, cycling lanes and transit connections will be discussed at a Nov. 4 symposium called Toronto Talking Mobility.

Planned by U of T's Cities Centre, the Pembina Institute and other concerned civic groups, the conference will incorporate original research papers, public input and social media.

A Nov. 3 public forum with speakers selected to engage the public will precede the conference.

"We really have to get the city, particularly people in the suburbs, being a little more thoughtful about their city and the transportation system so they can push the politicians," said Cities Centre director Eric Miller, a key organizer.

The Toronto Board of Trade has warned that gridlock already costs the region $6 billion a year.

- Performance honouring Michael Jackson part of IIFA showcase Friday
- Event one of several meant to promote Indian entertainment stars

Jermaine Jackson says he and his famous singing siblings were inspired by the over-the-top song-and-dance performances of Bollywood.

The Jackson 5 singer says it's a big reason he's taking part in a tribute to his late brother Michael at a glitzy concert Friday put on by the International Indian Film Academy in Toronto.

Jackson told a press conference studded with Bollywood celebrities that his family watched Indian films every Saturday when they moved to California to make it big in show business.

"We were watching you from Day 1 as we were on the journey of becoming the Jackson 5," Jackson said Thursday after Indian movie stars launched a three-day party commonly known as the IIFAs.

Jackson sparked a media frenzy when he made a sur-

The IIFA festivities will be capped with a star-studded awards show Saturday.

Art meets science in stem-cell exhibit

This summer the Ontario Science Centre, along with the Stem Cell Network and students from Ontario art and design schools, is exploring the intersection of art and stem-cell research with a new exhibit.

Super Cells: The Wonder of Stem Cells runs until Oct. 2.

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the discovery of stem cells by Canadian scientists James Till and Ernest McCulloch.

"This exhibition is a fitting tribute to their work, which took place here in Toronto," said Drew Lyall, executive director of the Stem Cell Network. METRO

The 49-year-old Richmond Hill woman said she couldn't make sense of all the numbers when $22.6 million popped up on a ticket-checking machine last week.

Cops too slow in response to G20 violence: Report

► Audit shows police hamstrung by poor communications and co-ordination ► Radio transmissions overwhelmed

As “radical elements” broke free of a G20 protest and began causing the unprecedented destruction of downtown Toronto, officers were simply unprepared to deal with the magnitude of the disorder, an internal police report concludes.

An audit by the Toronto Police Service of the force’s much-maligned actions during the G20 summit over June 26 and 27, 2010 was released Thursday with 10 recommendations.

The report paints a picture of police resources being overwhelmed by the sudden vandalism and so-called Black Bloc protest techniques. Not enough riot police could respond, and some officers not properly trained in riot policing were forced to step in, the report says.

While the chaos was unfolding plans were not communicated properly down the chain of command. Some operational plans were put in place the day before the summit.

In a foreword to the report Toronto Police Chief Bill Blair says the challenges facing police that weekend were “immense” and some aspects were handled well, while others were not.

“Last June we saw levels of violence we had never seen before in Toronto,” Blair writes. “People came to the G20 summit, not to engage in debate or discussion or demonstrations, but to infiltrate lawful, peaceful protests and use them as cover to commit vandalism and violence.”

Murder charge laid in Parkdale beating

Police say they have finally cracked the case of the balaclava-clad serial attacker who has terrorized the Parkdale community since January.

Ricardo Morrison, 31, was formally charged on Thursday with second-degree murder in the death of George Wass, 62, a resident of the area who had mental health issues.

Morrison, who was already in custody facing two other assault charges stemming from attacks in the neighbourhood, now also faces a further five assault charges in relation to the string of attacks that targeted vulnerable people.

Morrison, who lived in a rooming house in the area where the attacks occurred, has a court appearance July 6 to answer to the total of seven assault charges and one murder charge.

Asian sports event 'open to all': Official

► Asian Community Games will be held June 25 and 26 ► Admission is free for anyone interested

PHOEBE HO
TORONTO@METRONEWS.CA

The seventh annual Asian Community Games will be kicking off this weekend at York University, but don't let the name fool you — it's an event open to people of all backgrounds.

"It's open to all, not limited to the Asian community," said Joseph Fong, the event's chair. "We emphasize on multiculturalism."

The event has extended its reach to athletes of all backgrounds and is meant to connect youths and adults in the community, and to encourage and facilitate cross-cultural interaction.

According to Fong, there

"From the Asian Community Games, we try to educate the younger generation to have better fitness and health."

JOSEPH FONG, ASIAN COMMUNITY GAMES CHAIR

is a general lack of interest in the Asian community when it comes to sports, which was the reason he founded the games.

Roughly 5,000 people are expected to attend, a vast contrast to the 200 participants in its earlier years.

"Most Asians, they don't get involved in sport programs and they don't exercise as much as other communities," he said.

Ontario Minister of Tourism and Culture Michael Chan will be one of the special guests attending the opening ceremony tomorrow morning. Chan says he has seen the event grow since it first began in 2005, and encourages people of all backgrounds to participate.

"It's about health and quality of life," said Chan. "I hope Asians and all other communities embrace sports."

With a golf tournament added to its list, this year's games will feature nine different sporting events.

Kissing couple's ordeal revealed

► New video shows them being knocked down by police ► And the kiss? 'I was just trying to calm her down'

A new video reveals the truth about that famous photo of Vancouver's kissing couple, who were pictured lying on the road-way amid the chaos of the Stanley Cup riot.

The video shows the two being knocked down by charging Vancouver riot police just minutes before the photo was taken.

Scott Jones and Alex Thomas topple to the street as they're caught in the path of officers with riot shields and clubs.

Jones, a 29-year-old Australian, cradles Thomas, a University of Guelph graduate from Coquitlam, B.C.

Thomas cries and holds her head. "We were struck by police shields, pushed to the ground, and I was just very, very frightened," Thomas said.

"Everything happened

so fast, faster than we could ever imagine."

Moments later, Jones would lean over and kiss Thomas, a split second captured by photographer Rich Lam that has become an iconic image of the riots that followed the Canucks' 4-0 loss to the Boston Bruins.

"I was just trying to calm her down," Jones said.

The thinning blue line

► Cops subject to SIU probes banned from communicating with each other, sharing lawyer ► Liberals acting on recommendation by former chief justice

SIU probes

- In September 2009, the SIU was unable to conclude whether an OPP officer was guilty in the shooting death of Levi Schaeffer, a 30-year-old schizophrenic Peterborough man.
- The officer and his partner were the only witnesses and they had their notes vetted by a police union lawyer before submitting them to the SIU.
- Lawyer Julian Falconer, who represents Schaeffer's family, expressed other concerns warning that there still remains the "gaping loophole" of police officers keeping two sets of notes — with the de facto blessing of their chief.

Police officers under investigation for shootings or serious injuries will be prohibited from communicating with one another or sharing a lawyer as of Aug. 1, says Attorney General Chris Bentley.

Expressing concern relations between the province's Special Investigations Unit, which probes serious incidents involving officers, and various police forces were "not headed in the right direction," Bentley said it was necessary for Queen's Park to act.

A Toronto Star investigative series last fall revealed that officers across Ontario receive different treatment from civilians similarly accused of seriously injuring or killing a person.

In some cases, the SIU was not even able to properly investigate police with officers being allowed to share lawyers and delay writing notes. The Star also exposed concerns officers collaborated on stories to stymie SIU probes.

SIU director Ian Scott has long criticized Ontario's police forces and officers' unions for essentially enabling collusion and concealment of incriminating evidence.

"There seemed to be lots of back and forth commentary in the news media and that's never an indication of a healthy working relationship," said Bentley.

Aside from banning "witness" officers from using the same lawyer as so-called "subject" officers, the new regulation re-

"It's important for everyone. We want strong police services and we want strong oversight."

Bin Laden's death graphically depicted

► Illustrated book set for release Sept. 6, less than a week before 10th anniversary of 9-11 attacks

The daring secret mission to get Osama bin Laden by elite U.S. forces will be told in the pages of a new graphic novel that aims to shed more light — with a bit of creative fiction — on the event.

Written by retired U.S. Marine Capt. Dale Dye and Julia Dye, the 88-page hard-cover Code Word: Geronimo takes a look at the mission the authors said was aimed at keeping the focus on those who planned, conducted and executed the raid.

IDW, a San Diego-based publisher known for its line of comics that includes G.I. Joe and Star Trek, said the story of how bin Laden was killed would appeal to both new and established readers.

Julia Dye called the work necessary for the nation, particularly having had to live "within the shadow" of bin Laden for so long.

The story opens with a lone traveller on a dusty road in Pakistan, a rattled pickup passing by. It quickly shifts back and forth to a U.S. compound in Afghanistan to the White House to the house where bin Laden was hiding in Abbottabad, Pakistan.

The book is drawn without gratuitous violence or gore, the artists said.

The members of SEAL Team 6 are not identified by their real names, but the equipment, planning and training that resulted in the May 1 raid are.

Dye drew on his experience in the Marines as well as contacts within the U.S. military to ensure accuracy, but not to the point of being too detailed.

Anti-Islam politician acquitted

The boundaries of free speech in Europe widened Thursday after a Dutch court acquitted politician Geert Wilders of inciting hatred against Muslims when he compared Islam with Nazism and called for a ban on the Qur'an.

Political analysts say the ruling will likely embolden Wilders and other right-wing populists across the continent to ramp up their anti-immigrant rhetoric, with remarks like Wilders' call for a "head rag tax" now squarely within the boundaries of fair political debate.

The ruling did lay down a clear limit: Calls for violence remain out of bounds.

Wilders, who has lived under constant police protection due to death threats since 2004, has never called for violence or endorsed it.

FBI captures mob boss

► Notorious gangster was wanted for 19 brutal murders ► FBI criticized for protecting mob figures when using 'Whitey' and others as informants

Boston mob boss James (Whitey) Bulger was captured near Los Angeles after 16 years on the run that embarrassed the FBI and exposed the bureau's corrupt relationship with its underworld informants.

The FBI finally caught the 81-year-old Bulger on Wednesday at an apartment in Santa Monica, Calif., along with his girlfriend Catherine Greig, just days after the government circulated pictures of her on daytime TV. The arrest was based on a tip from this new campaign.

FBI agents put the apartment under surveillance, lured Bulger out and arrested him without incident, authorities said. The couple were using the aliases Charles and Carol Gasko.

A variety of guns and a large amount of cash were found in the apartment, the FBI said. Federal investigators declined to say how Bulger got enough money to live on.

Bulger had a $2-million US reward on his head and rose to No. 1 on the FBI's Ten Most Wanted list after Osama bin Laden was killed. "Although there are those who have doubted our resolve at times over the years, it has never wavered," said Richard DesLauriers, agent in the charge of the FBI's Boston office. "We followed every lead. We explored every possibility, and when those leads ran out, we did not sit back and wait for the phone to ring."

Bulger faces a slew of federal charges while Greig, 60, is charged with harbouring a fugitive.

Mom accused of microwave killing claims illness

A Northern California woman accused of killing her baby in a microwave initially told investigators she blacked out, but later acknowledged she lied and said she might have a split personality, according to an arrest warrant affidavit.

Ka Yang, 29, was to be arraigned Thursday on charges of murder and assault resulting in the death of a child under the age of 8. It's not clear whether she has an attorney.

Authorities found Yang's six-week-old daughter, Mirabelle Thao-Lo, dead in the family home in Sacramento three months before Yang's arrest last Tuesday. They say the child suffered "extensive thermal injuries."

The girl was burned from head to toe, but authorities could not find an obvious source for the burns when they arrived at the home, according to the affidavit by Sacramento Police Detective Thomas Shrum.

The infant's pyjamas and hair were not singed. A pacifier, however, was found in the microwave, Shrum said.

Yang allegedly told investigators she blacked out while working on the computer with Thao-Lo in her arms. Although she had a history of seizures, paramedics did not find her to be disoriented when they arrived, according to the affidavit. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Her other three children, all under age 7, were removed from the home the day their sister was found dead. They are living with relatives.

Street protests turn violent in Senegal

► Thousands attempt to rush the gates of parliament ► Dakar covered in a haze from burning tires and houses ► At least 107 wounded, police say

Senegal's president agreed Thursday to cancel a proposed change to the constitution which would have paved the way for his son to take power, amid massive street protests that marked the biggest challenge to his 11-year rule and threatened to derail a country known as one of the most stable in the region.

Anger boiled over Thursday morning as thousands of protesters attempted to rush the gates of parliament, where lawmakers were meeting to debate the law.

Clouds of tear gas enveloped the square, as police fought back the demonstrators with gas, rubber bullets and fire hoses. The demonstrations quickly spread from central Dakar to its suburbs, to three major towns in the interior, as well as abroad to Paris and Montreal.

The controversial amendment would have created the post of vice-president, a departure from Senegal's European-style

"Back in the old days, we had kings and kingdoms, but we're supposed to be a democracy now. I voted for Wade (pictured) ... but I'm done voting for him. What he's doing is trying to install a monarchy."

government, which has a president and a prime minister. The opposition charged that the position was being created so that President Abdoulaye Wade could nominate his unpopular son. If the two were to win next year's election, it would put in place a mechanism for the son's succession.

The 85-year-old Wade has already faced stinging criticism for his decision to run for a third term, meaning the frail leader could rule into his 90s. It raises the spectre that he could die in office. Under the current constitution, if that were to happen, the head of the national assembly would become president for a brief period before new elections are organized. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clinton blasts Gaza flotilla

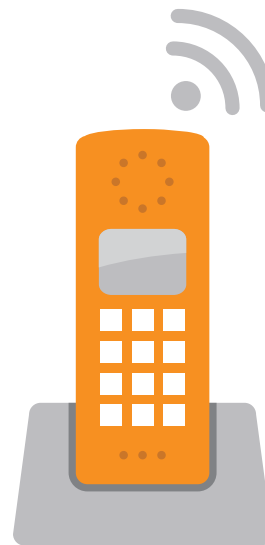

Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton is criticizing activists planning to challenge Israel's sea blockade of the Gaza Strip, saying their efforts are not "necessary or useful" in helping the Palestinian people of Gaza.

A day after the State Department warned Americans against participating in the planned flotilla, Clinton said Thursday that the effort, which Israel has said it will thwart, was not helpful. She said the aim of the organizers appeared to be to merely provoke Israel into taking action that it has every right to do to defend itself.

Memorial marks Air India attack

► Prime Minister Stephen Harper takes part in the memorial service yesterday in Montreal.

- PM unveils last national marker to 1985 tragedy
- Montreal memorial joins Ottawa, Toronto, Vancouver

On the anniversary of the Air India bombings, Prime Minister Stephen Harper is looking both to the past and to the future.

Harper was in Montreal yesterday unveiling the last of four national memorials to the 1985 bombing victims. This new memorial in the waterfront community of Lachine, a polished black stone, follows three similar ones in Toronto, Ottawa and Vancouver.

Harper said it was a day to remember the worst terrorist attack in Canadian history, when 331 people were killed.

The federal government created the Kanishka project to fund $10 million worth of initiatives designed to increase anti-terrorism knowledge — including conferences, publications and major research projects.

"Terrorism has not and will not undermine our way of life," Harper said.

"Our society remains resilient because of the basic values that bind us and make us stronger — freedom, democracy, human rights and the rule of law."

Details of hacker's troubled life revealed

JOHN STILLWELL/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The details of the troubled life of British teen Ryan Cleary, who has been charged with hacking into a British crime intelligence website, have begun to filter out.

The 19-year-old said to have been closeted in the bedroom of his mother's home in Wickford, Essex, in southeast England, appeared in court yesterday.

Details revealed by his mother paint a picture of a seriously disturbed teen who was emotionally vulnerable and attempted suicide. By all accounts, he was the ultimate reclusive computer nerd, squirreled away in his room targeting the world's computer networks for attack.

Cleary had a history of emotional and mental problems from an early age, appearing completely fearless and unable to grasp the consequences of his actions, his mother told the Daily Mail.

from bi-polar disorder. He was enrolled in other schools with the same result.

He has been remanded and will remain in jail in England for the next few days. His lawyer says he plans to apply for bail after the interview process has concluded.

Cleary is said to be co-operating with police. He faces five charges under the Criminal Law and Computer Misuse Act. The teen appeared in court, in a crumpled t-shirt and track-suit pants. He was pale and unshaven and bit his lips throughout the hearing.

Race against time to save U.S. city

► 10,000 flee as Souris River threatens Minot, N.D.
► Missouri, Nebraska brace for flood havoc, too

Crews worked furiously Thursday to raise earthen levees in a last-ditch effort to protect North Dakota's fourth-largest city from floodwaters.

Trucks and loaders carried clay and dirt to waiting Bobcats that sped to and fro, spreading and tamping the material atop levees in Minot.

But as the Souris River kept rising ominously, officials acknowledged they would not be able to stop significant damage.

The crews were the only people to be seen — as many as 10,000 residents, or about one-fourth of Minot's population, have been moved to safety.

North Dakota officials expanded an evacuation order.

But it wasn't immediately clear how many residents would be affected.

National Guard Capt. Dan Murphy said officials were still examining maps and planned to release more information later.

"They're just trying to get everybody out of the area where they think the property is going to be inundated," Murphy said.

Meanwhile, in Missouri residents braced themselves for flood trouble as the Missouri River rose.

Water had started pouring over levees in Holt and Atchison counties, flooding homes and cabins.

► Molson Coors, Cobra strike on joint venture to make Indian beer

More than 20 years after he designed a beer that paired well with curry, Indian-born Lord Karan Bilimoria is partnering with Canadian-American beer giant Molson Coors to capture the world's fastest-growing beer market.

The Montreal and Denver-based brewer said Thursday it is making a long-awaited foray into India by purchasing a controlling stake of Cobra India. It will have operational control over Molson Coors Cobra India.

The deal, valued at almost $35 million, gives the company entry to a growing market that is expected to nearly double by 2020 to become one of the Top 10 in the world.

Bilimoria, 49, came up with the idea for Cobra while studying at Cambridge University.

A self-professed lover of English ales, he was looking for a beer that wasn't bitter when consumed with food, such as curry.

The result was a beer that combined the smoothness of an ale with the refreshing but less fizzy qualities of a lager.

"That taste is the foundation of the product and its success in the U.K. and, increasingly, globally," said Bilimoria, who will be chairman of the new company to be based in Mumbai.

Molson Coors, which is one of the last big brewers to enter India, says the $35 million buys out the minority shareholders, including Bilimoria. It also provides for working capital and expansion in the brewery operations.

Samsung to release report

Samsung plans to soon release the results of a probe into health and safety conditions at its South Korean semiconductor factories after employee illnesses and deaths raised fears of cancer risks.

Samsung Electronics

Co. commissioned an investigation by occupational health and safety experts last July after more than 20 of its chip plant workers were diagnosed with leukemia or lymphoma since 1998. A total of 10 died.

The announcement of the release came after a South Korean court ruled Thursday that the leukemia deaths of two women were linked to working at a Samsung semiconductor factory.

► Cameron Winklevoss, left, and brother Tyler leave the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco in January.

► Settlement includes $45M in shares ► Stock now worth $100M

The Harvard University classmates of Facebook founder Mark Zuckerberg are ending the legal battle made famous by the Hollywood movie The Social Network.

In a one-paragraph court filing Wednesday, Cameron and Tyler Winklevoss said they would accept a settlement that was worth $65 million US when agreed upon in 2008.

The twins had sought to undo the settlement of $20 million cash and $45 million in stock.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled against the twins, saying they had been represented by a squadron of Silicon Valley lawyers and their father, a noted business professor.

The twins said Wednesday they would forgo a trip to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Their stock is now worth more than $100 million. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cogeco calls for tighter CRTC controls

Cogeco Cable is calling on the federal broadcast regulator to slap tighter controls on Canada's increasingly concentrated telecommunications and broadcast sector.

The Montreal-based cable TV company told the CRTC on Thursday that a string of takeovers in the industry requires tougher regulation.

Specifically, Cogeco

said, the regulator needs to crack down on corporate discrimination, undue preferences, refusal to deal, tied selling and margin squeezing that could hurt independent competitors in the industry.

The commission has been looking into the ownership of television channels by the big cable and satellite companies.

MONEY TALKS

FINANCIAL ADVICE FOR NEW CANADIANS

Q I'm a new arrival in Canada, and I would like to start my own small business. How do I begin?

A You start by learning everything you can about your business and your market, and the laws affecting them. But you don't have to do it alone: many financial institutions, along with federal and provincial governments, can offer you services and support.

Begin with a look at the federal government's Service Canada website, which has information on employment insurance, registering businesses, hiring, and many other topics. If you have business experience already, you may also qualify for the government's Entrepreneur Program — visit Citizen and Immigration Canada's website to learn more about that too.

Also seek out advice from local resources. If you live in British Columbia, for example, WelcomeBC.ca is a good source of information for immigrants looking to start businesses in that province. Settlement.org and Immigration et Communautés culturelles Québec outline the steps required to make entrepreneurship a reality in Ontario and Quebec, respectively.

Don't forget about the bank. "Your bank's small-business adviser can be another valuable source of advice," says RBC's Dale Sturges, director, Multicultural Business Markets.

"What are the start-up costs for a business like yours? How much cashflow will it require? When can you expect to break even? You have to answer these questions before you can calculate how much money you'll need at the outset, and an adviser can help."

Small-business advisers also help you to address important details like attracting and retaining good employees, collecting and remitting various taxes, identifying business risks, and determining your insurance needs. They can even connect you with accountants, lawyers and other professionals you'll need to help build your business right.

Once you've reviewed government resources, consulted with your adviser, and determined what you need to get started, it's time to put together your business plan. Writing a business plan forces you to think everything through: Your product or service, start-up costs, location, potential customers, market, pricing strategy, how much you expect to make, and the competitive landscape you expect to find. Make sure your business plan is accurate and easy to understand: These are the things a banker and/or investors need to be confident about before they'll take a risk on your dream.

These are only the first steps of a long journey. But if you work hard and take advantage of every resource available to you, your small business could be a big success.

1 Late Transition. You may have seen commercials about an analog shutdown on August 31. This transition to "all digital" only impacts people that still use antennas to receive their TV signal. Not to alienate the dozens of people who still adjust their image via wire hanger attached to the back of Uncle Lenny's wheelchair, but a cable-conversion box is available. Now, I'm not the most tech-savvy person in town, but isn't this like adding a Touch-Tone converter to your rotary phone? Hey, it's 2011. People are watching HBO on their wristwatches. You don't have to dance, but the least you could do is come to the party, Huckleberry. Jeez!

2 Amy Winehouse. After two years of supposed sobriety, her European comeback tour began with her "coming back" to rehab. I suddenly thought it ironic that a notorious alcoholic/junkie should be named "Winehouse," but then I discovered that like many immigrants, her parents had changed their name. The original name was "Crackhouse." (My apologies. I couldn't resist.)

3 Drop the puck. Winnipeg's new NHL franchise was unanimously approved by the league's board of governors. Within three days of announcing the sale, the franchise sold 13,000 season tickets. I've always said that the two best things about Winnipeg in the '80s were hockey and Burton Cummings. Now if they combine the two and have him sing every anthem, I'm watching.

4 Disservice with a smile. Two of our nation's most important service providers, Air Canada and Canada Post, went on strike, forcing consumers to employ other alternatives. Unfortunately, Canadians are having a difficult time adjusting, as they are unaccustomed to receiving good service while being treated well at the same time.

5 Royal economics. The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge, in an effort to save taxpayers' money, will reduce the number of valets or dressers on their foreign tour this month. This simply means that instead of the 14 aides with which daddy, Prince Charles, routinely travels, they will tough it out with a mere six or seven. I don't mean to appear ungrateful for the extra McFlurry I can afford with my tax refund in 2013, but I keep getting distracted by repeated footage of their $80-million wedding!

6 Sotto Voce. The Voice has officially eclipsed American Idol in talent, quality and class. Not a single contestant, even in the opening rounds, was there for the sole purpose of public mockery. Every contestant had chops. I also believe they have identified a great new artist in Javier Colon. If you haven't been watching, check him out on YouTube.

7 Who's the boss? Every Springsteen fan knows the story of that stormy night at Asbury Park in 1971 when Bruce met some football player who apparently "played a little sax." And anyone who's seen a Springsteen show recalls Bruce's introduction of the band. Right before breaking into a rendition of Thunder Road, he'd say, "On saxophone, the incomparable, the big man ... Clarence Clemons!" Clarence is gone now, but his music remains.

DINOSAURS. Scientists have figured out a way to take the temperature of dinosaurs, and it turns out to be almost the same as ours.

Of course you can't stick a thermometer under the tongue of a creature that's been extinct for millions of years.

So they did the next best thing. They studied dinosaur teeth, which can reflect body temperature.

They found the long-necked Brachiosaurus had a temperature of about 38.2 C and the smaller Camarasaurus had a temperature of about 36.8 C degrees. People average 37 C.

Their study, reported online Thursday in the journal Science, will not settle the long-running debate over whether dinosaurs were warm-blooded like modern mammals or cold-blooded, requiring outside sources of warmth to get them going like lizards.

The researchers were able to determine the creatures' temperatures because body temperature makes a difference in the amount of different types of carbon and oxygen that collect in the tooth enamel.

Plot synopsis

In the new Cameron Diaz movie, Bad Teacher, she plays – you guessed it – a bad teacher! More concerned with hooking up with a wealthy co-worker (played by her real-life ex Justin Timberlake) than with her students, she doesn't make much of an effort to actually educate until she learns there's a cash bonus for the teacher with the highest classroom grade average.

Turn up the raunch

► Richard Crouse and Tony Krolo agree Bad Teacher could have afforded more vulgarity ► But Cameron Diaz shines, as does her supporting cast Comedian Tony Krolo is sitting in for Mark Breslin this week.

Richard Crouse: Tony, having seen the red band trailer for Bad Teacher I went in expecting a vulgar, funny swear-fest along the same lines as The Hangover. Instead I got a funny, only somewhat vulgar movie that I think could have benefitted from a bit more raunch. Don't get me wrong, I liked it, but my expectations were higher... or, I guess, lower. What did you think? (Remember you have big shoes to fill here!)

Tony Krolo: First let me thank you for the opportunity to temporarily replace the vacationing Mark Breslin.

I wanted to like this movie... so I did. From the opening song Teacher, Teacher by Rockpile, something I still have on original vinyl, to the great casting in even the smallest of roles to the sweet moments followed immediately by gross sight gags to the nicely paced direction by Jake Kasdan, Bad Teacher had a little bit of everything. But it could have had a lot more raunch, you're right.

RC: Yeah, it seems a bit afraid to go all the way. Diaz's character, a desperate, pretty-on-the-outside but ugly underneath is an odd character to hang a comedy on, but she pulls it off. She'll never be the funny, fresh face she was in

There's Something About Mary and The Mask, and for this movie that's a good thing. The very slight patina of age and experience in her manner adds some extra desperation to Elizabeth. Having said that, I don't think this movie would work nearly as well without the supporting cast. You?

TK: The cast was incredible. Justin Timberlake really shines here. Jason Segel, John Michael Higgins, Phyllis Smith from The Office, they do their usual, great characters, but Eric Stonestreet from Modern Family played opposite to what you would expect, to really funny results. The only sad thing was the grossly underused Molly Shannon. It's sad. If she was 15 years younger, she'd have been perfect to play Lucy Punch's Amy Squirrel character, who I felt was doing a great Molly Shannon.

RC: The supporting cast don't exactly rescue this movie – it doesn't need rescuing – but without them Bad Teacher wouldn't be nearly as much fun.

TK: It is very funny if you can allow your suspension of disbelief to ignore the premise that Cameron Diaz's character actually worked at the school for a full year and gets hired back to have the shenanigans in this movie.

Tom Hanks up against summer superheros

Tom Hanks is the first to admit that Larry Crowne, his new comedy about a middle-aged man who goes back to college after losing his job, is something of a hard sell in the crowded, superhero-heavy summer movie season.

"How do we compete in the marketplace? Forgive me, I haven't the slightest f—ing idea. It's going to be interesting," Hanks says.

"You know, you say, here we are in a summer of big-time blockbusters. It's not the summer — it's year-round," he says. "You could interview all the marketing gurus and they'll all talk about release dates and counter-programming and blah blah blah. But at the end of the day, it's got to be a good movie, it's got to be a funny movie and it's got to make people think, 'Hey, I couldn't have spent my time any better.'"

A tall order, to be sure. But as director, co-writer and the face of the titular Crowne, Hanks is more than up to the challenge. Besides, he's not actually that worried about the competition. "By the way, that thing about the guy who wore a suit and the planet exploded and he still got the girl by traveling through time? That movie sucked," Hanks says with a laugh. "I'm not saying any movie sucked, but you know what I'm talking about," he's quick to add, his inherent Mr. Nice Guy kicking in.

Kinetic action, staggering beauty drive The Mountie

► Andrew Walker as The Mountie.

► Julia Roberts and Tom Hanks star in Larry Crowne.

The story of a man heading to college in his 50s might make most people think midlife crisis, but for Hanks that doesn't begin to cover it. "It's not a midlife crisis, it's a midlife disaster," he says. "Midlife crisis is when you wake up with everything — 'Oh, I have everything but I'm still unhappy.' That doesn't happen to Larry. Larry thinks it's the greatest day in the world and he gets fired."

Hanks might not be the most obvious choice for a movie championing the importance of higher education, though. "You're talking to a guy who left college after his third year because I began work in the field that I was studying for," he explains. "Someone offered me a job as an actor, and I was studying the theatre at the time."

And while not graduating college did work out OK for Hanks — and Julia

Roberts as well — he is quick to point out that he and his leading lady still remember the tough times, Oscars or no Oscars.

"There is a time for both of us where we're living in a rented house in the Valley that we cannot afford, we have been fired from the job that we had and it's now been 13 months since you've actually worked in the city and the phone still is not yet ringing," Hanks says. "And you wonder if in fact you're going to take the job at the Wienerschnitzel on Laurel Canyon. When you have that moment, that never quite goes away."

But serving up hotdogs on pretzel buns probably isn't in Hanks' future now. He does have those Oscars, after all — two of the them, to be specific, for Philadelphia and Forrest Gump. So where does he keep them? "Mine are up on the shelf with all the kids' trophies and horse ribbons and soccer plaques."

- This rough, moody and decidedly low-budget film stars Andrew Walker as an emotionally broken Mountie
- Includes solid supporting actor work from noted thespian George Buza and up-and-comer Jessica Pare

The western is perhaps the most purely American genre film, telling tales of those brave forgers of civilization during the harshest of times, the literal blueprint for the country and its platforms.

But the themes explored in the western are universal: not only pitting men against men, but also men — and women — against the cruel apathy of nature itself.

In the context of Canadian history, where else can one find such weighty motifs then in the legacy of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, those handsomely clad, red-serge-sporting warriors on horseback, northern samurais who rode the prairies righting wrongs and upholding moral codes.

It's the mythology of the RCMP's salad days that director Wyeth Clarkson opted to explore in his new action drama The Mountie (called, appropriately The Way of the West in the U.S.), a rough, moody and decidedly low-budget piece of work starring Andrew Walker as an emotionally broken Mountie who rides into a desperate Yukon outpost and immediately begins to liberate its people from the harshness of the land and the grasp of an evil Russian opium lord.

"I did my homework," notes the handsome Walker, who dons scraggly beard and dirty uniform.

"I watched a lot of Clint (Eastwood). I mean, for years I thought Clint and also John Wayne were, you know, really not acting, not doing much of anything. But I was wrong. I studied their work and if you look closely you can see that the kind of stoney restraint and inner voice was not easy.

"My character is shattered from a mistake he made in the past and the challenge was to carry that emotional state throughout the film, to make it consistent."

Filled with staggering beautiful Northern landscapes right of a Terrence Malick film, kinetic action and solid supporting actor work from such noted thespians as George Buza and up-and-comer Jessica Pare (Suck), The Mountie may be Can con through and through, but its soul lies squarely in the west.

5 super-less superhero films

For all the enduring superhero movies that have been made over the years — The Dark Knight, the original Christopher Reeve Superman, Tobey Maguire's first two turns as Spider-Man — there are just as many that don't exactly live up to their own mythology or the expectations of their legions of followers.

Green Lantern, starring Ryan Reynolds as the reluctant new member of an intergalactic peacekeeping corps, would fall squarely into the latter category.

Jeered by critics last week as just a muddled, joyless bore, it made $53.2 million opening weekend, good enough for a No. 1 finish but a modest start compared to other superhero adventures.

But it gives us a great chance to compile an ignominious list of superhero movies that are less than super.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Catwoman
(2004)

So few films in the genre are about female do-gooders — it's usually the job of the women in these movies to look pretty in peril and wait around for the men in tights to save them — which is why it was such a bummer that this was a laughable disaster.

Halle Berry is indeed a sight to behold in her Catwoman get-up, and you've gotta love the fact that she had enough of a sense of humour to show up at the Razzie Award ceremony to pick up her worst-actress prize.

(It also "won" for worst picture, worst director and worst screenplay.)

But Berry's jaw-dropping good looks alone can't save this, and since all the scenes in which she kicks butt and leaps about with feline agility are sped-up, you don't get to ogle her for long anyway.

Daredevil
(2003)

This was a rough year for Ben Affleck. Besides this slick and formulaic adaptation of the Marvel Comic, in which Affleck played the blind lawyer-crimefighter Matt Murdock, he also starred in the notorious turkey Gigli.

To be fair, he was an easy target at this point in his career, when he was half of the tabloid sensation Bennifer with then-fiancee and Gigli co-star Jennifer Lopez. Still, Daredevil stands on its own two feet for its failures.

The character is flawed and tormented, not at all the good guy he'd seem to be on the surface, which might have been intriguing if Affleck hadn't played him so stiffly.

Daredevil also has the dubious distinction of spinning off 2005's Elektra, starring the current Mrs. Affleck, Jennifer Garner. Both have bounced back nicely from their superhero period.

Batman & Robin
(1997)

Nipples in the bat suit. This is pretty much all you need to know, and it's completely reflective of Joel Schumacher's campy style.

The steam has clearly run out in this, the fourth film in the franchise (and we're a long way at the point from Christopher Nolan's masterful re-envisioning of The Caped Crusader).

Arnold Schwarzenegger cheeses it up big time (even by his standards) as the villainous Mr. Freeze, and Uma Thurman never generates much heat as the toxic Poison Ivy.

Full of glib pop-culture references and gimmicky gadgets, this version worked hard to be silly and fun, and never revealed an understanding of Batman's true nature.

Hulk

This would be Ang Lee's Hulk starring Eric Bana, not to be confused with Louis Leterrier's 2008 The Incredible Hulk starring Edward Norton, which was actually fun and action-packed.

Nobody's career was permanently damaged by this; everyone turned out fine afterward. Lee went on to win the best-director Oscar for Brokeback Mountain, Bana starred in the gripping Munich, and co-star Jennifer Connelly went on to do excellent work in films including House of Sand and Fog.

But man, at the time, this was just a self-serious drag: sombre and introspective, with none of the zippy escape you'd like to see in a summer blockbuster based on a comic book. You'd want to see Bruce Banner when he's angry, just because it would be a refreshing change from watching him brood.

Spider-Man 3
(2007)

This would have felt like a bloated behemoth on its own. The fact that two thrilling and imaginative films preceded it — with Spider-Man 2 emerging as a rare sequel that surpasses the original — made it feel like even more of a letdown.

Director and co-writer Sam Raimi overloads us with more villains, more supporting characters and more plot lines spread out across more time. People and threats come and go, and the narrative feels scattered.

Peter Parker (Tobey Maguire) must battle human foes Flint Marko (Thomas Haden Church) and Eddie Brock (Topher Grace) but also their alter egos, the Sandman and Venom. And Peter, as Spider-Man, must fight his own dark urges when a pesky black goop from outer space attaches itself onto him of all people — what are the odds?

Cars 2

Genre: Animated

Director: John Lasseter, Brad Lewis

Stars: Larry The Cable Guy, Owen Wilson, Michael Caine

After Pixar's ambitious work on titles such as Ratatouille and Wall-E, this is a disappointment. The first Cars was arguably the weakest Pixar outing, but it at least had moments of pathos and the mature storytelling.

Cars 2 shoves Lightning McQueen to the sidelines of his own franchise in favour of an ill-conceived James Bond homage starring the comic relief character Mater. The material might have worked as a direct-to-DVD sequel exclusively for children, but as a big-screen outing that will draw in all ages it's a letdown.

The convoluted plot wants to comment on the ruthless tactics of corporations determined to maintain fossil fuel dominance, but quickly turns into an mistaken identity comedy with Larry The Cable Guy playing spy games with Michael Caine.

The jokes are tired and the message about accepting friends in spite of their differences was already covered last time. The animation is stunning and there are a handful of funny sequences, but it's impossible not to compare it to the original movie.

Pixar set the bar pretty high for animated fare and at this point simple family escapism like Cars 2 isn't enough.

Beginning Of The Great Revival

Genre: Drama

Director: Sanping Han, Jianxin Huang

Stars: Chow Yun Fat, John Woo, Andy Lau

This is a Chinese historical epic about the formation of the Communist party. As a piece of craftsmanship, the film is easy to admire with extraordinary production values and impressive action set pieces. However, it's also undeniably propaganda and difficult to enjoy as pure storytelling.

To Die Like a Man

Genre: Drama

Director: Joao Pedro Rodrigues

Stars: Chandra Malatitch, John Jesus Romao, Ivo Barroso

A tough and oddly moving tale of a Portuguese transvestite at the end of a drag career who desperately wants to erase his male identity, but ends up accepting it in time for death. It's rough going at times and can reveal a bit too heavily in shock tactics. However, there's something touching and admirable about director Joao Pedro Rodrigues' love of his out-cast characters.

The Future is Now!

Genre: Docu-drama

Director: Gary Burns, im Brown

Stars: Liane Balaban, Paul Ahmarani. Like their 2006 documentary Radiant City, Gary Burns and Jim Brown's The Future is Now! inter-mingles actors and real-life interview subjects. This movie pits a fictional cynic against real artists and scientists aiming to transform his worldview. Playful and philosophical, it may not alter truly skeptical minds but it is entertaining.

Thinking big pays off for Gibson

► Actor stars in much anticipated Transformers flick
► Motivational book on New York Times Bestseller list

RICHARD
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Tyrese Gibson, the handsome singer and actor, thinks big.

Making his new film, Transformers: Dark of the Moon, was intense, he says, because "we were working on something the world is anticipating."

Later he mentions Michelle Obama is a fan of his book How to Get Out of Your Own Way. "I'm going to meet her one day," he muses, "and she's going to say, 'Hey, I got your book. Thank you so much.' She was probably reading my book in her bed and her husband came to bed. 'What are you reading, baby?' 'Oh, Tyrese's new book.'"

Gibson doesn't regard these overblown statements as hubris but as simple statements of fact. It's hard to argue with him. The third Transformers movie is one of the most anticipated of the year and his book is on the New York Times Bestseller list.

The key to his success is something called "maximizing the stage," he says.

"As these opportunities come up you dream with your eyes open. You want to become or be a part of the things that you see. There is only so much in your life that you can plan out. It's arrogant to believe that the next second belongs to you. Tomorrow is a promise so now that we're here it's about maximizing."

That kind of motivational motor-mouthing makes up much of his book and his very active twitter account; 1,723,206 people follow his every post, soaking up axioms like, "If it IS to BE it's up to ME."

"Twitter has definitely revolutionized the entertainer and fan experience," he says. "I have a certain responsibility to the fans to make them aware of the things that I know and the things I am exposed to and things that motivate me. There are a lot of people out there who are talented, enthusiastic and fired up about life but they have no sense of direction. Through Twitter I have been able to put some information out there that people are responding to."

Thinking big has paid off for Gibson.

"I shot both Fast Five and Transformers simultaneously over seven months," he says. "Hanging out with Vin Diesel and Paul Walker from 6 a.m. to 11 a.m. and then getting on a private plane to get to Michael Bay. The same day; two different movie sets. That's a good life right there baby."

"The performances are fearless, unconventional, and memorable... 'Beautiful Boy' is a gripping experience that left me weak in the knees."
Rex Reed, New York Observer

"Michael Sheen and Maria Bello are two extraordinary actors... worth the price of admission."

SECRECY AS A MARKETING TOOL

ALAN CROSS
SCENE
@METRONEWS.CA

Usually, the route to fame requires help: publicists, pluggers, and plenty of public appearances (cf. Lady Gaga). But in the ultra-short attention span world of today's music, I've noticed that an increasing number of performers are becoming famous by staying anonymous.

The publishing world has known about the marketing power for anonymity for decades. Now some quarters of the music world seems to be applying the same methods. Smart, this, since the intrigued are forced to embark on competitive detective work that may go on for weeks or months, creating buzz and increasing chances of a breakthrough in a noisy market.

An example is Cults, the boy-girl indie pop outfit from Manhattan who created a stir in the hipster blogger community when they released a well-received EP in 2010 without offering any information about themselves. That mystery parlayed itself — intentionally or otherwise — into a major label deal. The British music media recently fell for Manchester's Wu Lyf.

They gave no interviews and made no appearances. All communication was one-way through their website, which consisted of weird mission statements in language that bordered on nonsensical. There was one picture: four people wearing bandanas in a smoky parking lot. Only now that they have an album coming out has Wu Lyf begun to talk. Their manager has been revealed as the founder of a creative agency whose clients include Adidas and Virgin. All this was carefully staged.

At first, all anyone knew about Brighton's YAKS was that the lineup included someone named Thom and five mates. Their identity is still pretty unclear, but that hasn't stopped a sizeable number of people from freaking out about a single called HRHRHYTHM.

Lest you think that this a new thing, consider the Residents, the San Francisco art collective whose members have never been identified since forming in San Francisco in 1966. Public appearances are done in disguise and all requests for interviews are denied.

Hey, who says you have to be famous and recognizable?

► Liam Gallagher, minus his brother Noel, fronts Beady Eye.

Raising their game

► Beady Eye not resting on success from Oasis' days

LINDA LABAN
METRO WORLD NEWS

Beady Eye sees the former members of Oasis, including frontman Liam Gallagher, but minus brother Noel, downsizing tours and playing smaller venues. However, forging ahead with this new band has upped their game.

"It's weird, man," says guitarist Gem Archer, "because I think a lot more bands should split up."

Known for the sibling rivalry of the brothers Gal-agher as much as their melodic Brit-pop hits, Oasis suddenly, though not too surprisingly, fractured in 2009.

As Archer considers the quote he just provided, he laughs at how it could be taken as typically acerbic for these Brit-pop vets.

"I mean as an exercise," he adds.

"Imagine if every band said, 'Look, for the next tour we're going to do all the new songs and only sticking in three or four (old ones).'"

That is exactly what

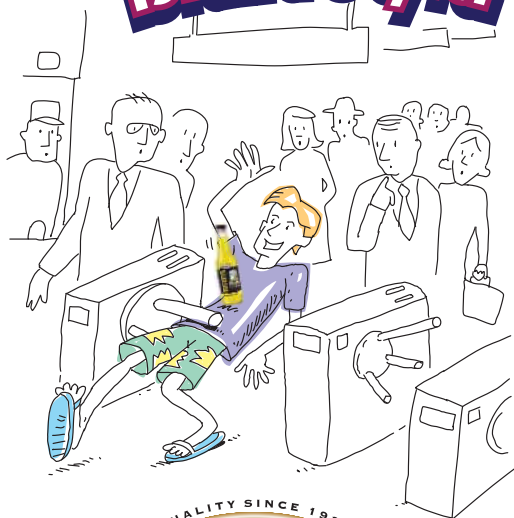

Beady Eye's challenge is.

Though they look and sound familiar, they don't want to lazily rest on old laurels and play Oasis hits on this first world tour, which includes only a handful of U.S. dates and a promise, says Gem, to return for more before the end of the year.

"It was a bit of a mindf— to sort of go, 'Look this is all we've got,'" Gem says of the band's debut album, Different Gear, Still Speeding, which was released in February.

"It raises your game."

The new kings of Sweden

► Royal Republic unites in humour and accidental Nazi salutes ► The hard partying tunes bring the noise

PAT HEALY

METRO WORLD NEWS IN BOSTON

It can be difficult to take what Royal Republic singer Adam Grahn says seriously. It's not just his huge handlebar mustache or that he sings lyrics like, "I can see your underwear!" in the chorus of one of his band's biggest hits.

It's that he makes a lot of jokes in conversation that are in perfect keeping with the Swedish band's hard-rocking party tunes, as represented on their debut from last year, We Are the Royal.

It sounds like you're having a lot of fun singing these songs...

We're having too much fun. This album is all about having fun. We're just four dudes. It's just bullshit. There's nothing in there really, just stupid music stories about stupid made up people and the thing with all the happiness and all of the good stuff is that we'll have to write some emo, cut-yourself-into-pieces album to compensate.

Humour is definitely a big component of the first album. How important to you is that? For us, it was really important. We didn't want to be a heavy band, lyrically. We're happy guys. We have a lot of energy and this is what came out. We started writing for this album and the lyrics were really secondary. It was really about the whole package — the way you deliver the songs, the energy and everything and the connection with the audience.

► Never ones to take themselves too seriously, Royal Republic is turning some serious heads with their fresh approach party rock.

Playing so many shows with this one album, I'd imagine you're always looking for a way to keep yourself interested in what you're doing onstage.

We kind of had an incident the other week in Germany. We were headlining a pretty small festival, of like 3,000 to 4,000 people. I just recently came up with this thing, in the middle of a set, I thought, 'I'm going to bring the audience in and wave their hands back and forth'."

And I just lost it. I started saying, 'Everybody look at the dude with the mustache on the stage. Everybody do what the guy with the mustache is doing. Hands up!' And I was putting my arm out straight and going, 'Up, up!' (in German). And none of us thought about it until four days after in the van, our tour manager just turned his head in horror and was like, 'Adam, do you realize what we did the other day?'

► Tobey Maguire among celebs reportedly caught ante-ing up at unlicensed poker matches ► Spidey actor caught in a web of lawsuits

► Tobey Maguire

Spider-Man star Tobey Maguire and other celebrities have been caught in a web of lawsuits seeking to reclaim more than $4 million won during unlicensed poker matches at upscale Beverly Hills hotels, court records show.

The lawsuits were filed by a bankruptcy trustee attempting to recoup money for investors who were duped in a Ponzi scheme.

The legal actions claim the clandestine Texas Hold 'em matches were played between 2006 and 2009, with some of the money taken in the Ponzi scheme used to pay off debts incurred by its architect, Bradley Ruderman.

Maguire is being sued for $311,000 plus interest that the lawsuit says was won from Ruderman. In all, 22 people have been individually sued to try to recoup money.

Among them was Nick Cassavettes, director of The Notebook. The trustee is attempting to recover nearly $73,000 plus interest from the actor-director.

Maguire's attorney, Robert Barta, did not immediately return a phone message seeking comment but was expected to file a response to the suit later this week. Cassavettes' agent Jeff Berg also did not immediately respond to a phone message. Also being sued is billionaire businessman Alec Gores, who along with his brother attempted to buy Miramax

Films last year.

Gores is being sued for $445,500. Phone message left for Frank Stefanik, a spokesman at The Gores Group, and his attorney, Patricia Glaser, were not immediately returned.

Ruderman was sentenced to 10 years in federal prison earlier this year after pleading guilty to two counts of wire fraud, two counts of investment adviser fraud and wilful failure to file taxes. Bankruptcy trustee Howard Ehrenberg filed the lawsuits in late March, attempting to recoup money on behalf of people who invested in what the legal action called a Ponzi scheme organized by Ruderman. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pizza pie heaven

► This pizza takes the Italian favourite to a whole new level ► Grilling this Sweet Potato and Sausage Pizza infuses delicious smoky flavours

Start to finish:
30 min.
Makes:
8 slices

MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

► Grilling pizza offers a new flavour.

Summer grilling season is a great excuse to give the pizza delivery guy a break. Grilling infuses pizza with a wonderful smoky flavour and a crisp, chewy crust.

But you need to know a few basics.

First, your toppings need to be precooked because the pizza won't be on the grill long enough to cook them there. Second, it's important to start with clean, well-oiled grates because the dough will stick to charred food left on them.

Finally, start by grilling the dough plain until the bottom is lightly browned. Then oil the top, flip and add your sauce and other toppings to finish cooking.

We've opted for a slightly unusual combination of sausage and sweet potato.

Classic sliced tomatoes and mozzarella (with fresh basil thrown on after it comes off the grill) or sautéed peppers, onions and zucchini topped with pepper jack cheese also would be great summery options.

Preparation:

1 Bring a medium saucepan of water to a boil. Peel sweet potato and slice it into 3-mm (1/8-inch) slices. Drop slices into boiling water and boil until just tender, but not falling apart, 5 to 7 minutes. Drain sweet potatoes, then set aside.

2 Heat grill to medium-high. Grill sausage slices until charred and cooked through, about 3 minutes per side. Re-

Ingredients:

- 1 medium sweet potato
- 2 sweet or spicy Italian chicken sausage, each cut diagonally into 8 slices
- 1 ball (about 567 g/20 oz) pizza dough
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) olive oil
- 1 ball (500 g/16 oz) fresh mozzarella, sliced
- Salt and ground black pepper, to taste
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) chopped fresh thyme move from grill and set aside.

3 Clean grill grates and brush with oil. Stretch pizza dough into a rough circle, about 35 centimetres in diameter. Reduce grill to medium heat, set dough on grate. Close lid and grill for 7 minutes or until bottom is golden.

4 Brush top of pizza crust with half of olive oil and flip over. Brush again with remaining oil. Top with sweet potato slices, cooked sausage pieces and mozzarella slices. Close grill and cook for 8 minutes or until cheese is melted and bottom of crust is golden and crispy. Remove from grill and sprinkle with salt, pepper and thyme.

When you're a wine it's not that easy being pink. Caught between a red and a white place you're often accused of being designed for folks looking to take a step up from coolers.

Though California's White Zinfandel may be the best known pinky, Europe and South America have long histories of making rosé wines.

Theirs are typically drier with crisp berry fruit flavours. Light in acid and tannin they make a perfect match with pasta with tomato sauce and pizza, as well as grilled meats.

That harmony between body and fruit also gives them an edge over red wines when looking for a liquid partner for white meats and fresh fish; and they pair nicely with Asian dishes and brunch items.

Selection varies, with a wine like Folonari's 2010 Pink Pinot Grigio ($11.95 - $12.99) from Italy, a soft, strawberry-infused twist on the world's most popular white grape variety. PRICES RE-

1 A bottle of the best

An Australian hospital is reviewing their policy on hand sanitizers after finding six empty bottles in the bed of a 45-year-old alcoholic patient. It's believed the man drank the gel. The Medical Journal of Australia reports: "Experience at our institution over the past six months suggests that consumption of alcohol-based hand sanitizers by inpatients may be an increasing problem."

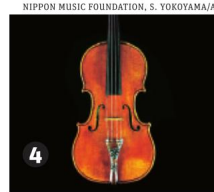

2 Don't roll like me

Gangsta rapper 50 Cent has written a novel for young adults with an anti-bullying message. Fiddy, who claims to have been shot nine times, says the book Playground is about a 13 year old forced to reconcile with his bullying. He says: "Now that I have a teenage son, it is my goal that this will have a positive influence on all teenagers." Playground is Fiddy's third book.

3 Time to change your unlock code

A survey of iPhone unlock codes reveals the top ten most common ones account for 15 per cent of all codes used. Most popular: 1234. It's used in about 1 in 23 phones. Second is 0000. Also in the top ten: 2580, 1111, 5555, 5683 — which spells "love" on a traditional phone pad — 0852, 2222, 1212 and 1998 which is probably the year of birth of the person who owns the phone.

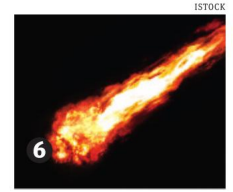

4 Hot fiddle

A new record was set when a Stradivarius violin was auctioned on Monday for $13.8 million. The Lady Blunt violin is said to be the Mona Lisa of musical instruments. It's one of 450 Stradivari violins known to still exist. A controversial theory on why their unique sound is so perfect: the spruce wood used by Stradivarius was conditioned by cold weather from abnormal sunspot activity in the 17th century.

5 Into the cage

Egyptian strongman Sayed al Essawy says he will fight a lion bare-handed Friday to boost tourism in Egypt. al Essawy vows to enter the cage of the 600 pound lion with only a shield and his bare hands. al Essawy says he may not kill the beast, "If he chooses to withdraw, or surrender, and lets me tie him up, then I will not kill him." Animal activists are outraged, but some reports cast doubt on the story.

6 Burning garbage from space

An unmanned spacecraft will be a fireball in the skies above New Zealand as it plunges toward Earth on Tuesday. Before the craft undocked from the ISS on Monday, astronauts stuffed it full of 1.3 tonnes of garbage. Included in the trash: old clothes, broken equipment and processed human urine from the ISS septic system. It's all expected to sizzle like fireworks on re-entry.

Feel the future without breaking the bank

► Trendy NYC hotel offers guests robotic luggage handlers, a sizzling outdoor bar and a reasonable pricetag

A new hotel in Manhattan is aiming to provide a very unique stay at an affordable price.

Purple lighting, throbbing music in the elevators and futon-like sofas that transform to lie-flat beds at the touch of a button help set the mood.

Or maybe they just distract you from the tiny size of the rooms. At 16 square metres, perhaps "room" is too generous of a term. Yotel prefers to call them cabins.

The tiny desk doubles as a nightstand. An overhead shower fixture delivers water like rain, perhaps to make the stall (no tub) seem more spacious. Of course there's no room for a fridge or minibar.

But guests aren't expected to hang out in their rooms. Yotel's massive fourth-floor lobby includes four bars, a 650-square-metre outdoor terrace and a restaurant inspired by a sumo wrestling ring

Yotel CEO Gerard Greene — who dresses more like a nightclub promoter than hotelier — is seeking guests that are "young at heart" and considers his property to be the "iPod of the hotel industry."

Everything here is self-service.

The six-metre-tall robotic arm at the entrance automatically stores bags in lockers for guests who want to wander around the city after the 11 a.m. check-out time.

At check-in, airport-like kiosks spit out room key cards and an invoice. Don't worry: humans are standing by to assist the technologically challenged.

Worried about oversleeping? Pick up the phone, press a few buttons and listen to a computer voice prompt you to "press one to accept wake-up call."

Instead of room service, prepared food is available from the concierge desk, dubbed Mission Control, which also sells hotel souvenirs like metallic Yotel water bottles.

But the real heart of the hotel is the action-packed terrace, already fast on its

Raptors draft for tomorrow

► Team picks Valanciunas even though he may not be able to join NBA for a year

The promise was too much to pass up, the skills too diverse to ignore and if it takes a year for the Raptors to find out exactly what they got in the NBA draft, they are more than willing to wait.

In a bold move made more for the future than any he's ever made, president and general manager Bryan Colangelo took 19-year-old Lithuanian centre Jonas Valanciunas with the fifth pick on Thursday night.

The returns may not be immediate: Valanciunas may not be able to get out of his contract with the Lithuanian club team Rytas Vilnius for another year.

It doesn't matter to the team.

"This is my 32nd year in coaching and I've never made a decision in whether I'm going keep my job, lose my job," said new head coach Dwane Casey. "What's best for the team is what's best for the team and we did the best thing for this organization."

"I like this young man, he blocks shots, he rolls the lane, he caught the ball. I just came from having Tyson Chandler (with the Dallas Mavericks) and Tyson Chandler at the same age was not as good as this young man."

Valanciunas is listed at six-foot-11 and a paltry 230

"I expect to play as soon as possible. But I don't know what is happening with the club; it will be done this year."

JONAS VALANCIUNAS

pounds but possesses attributes sorely lacking on the Raptors roster. He is a long, athletic shot-blocker with a passion for the game, according to scouting reports.

Casey sees him fitting in perfectly with the current roster.

"We've got umpteen million guards and you're looking at the young man (Brandon) Knight, the young man (Kemba) Walker, the young man (Kawhi) Leonard," said Casey. "We have a lot of players at that position, what we don't have is rim protection, length and athleticism in the middle."

"Amir (Johnson) is a good player but he doesn't have the length that this young man Valanciunas has."

Valanciunas played two seasons with a club team in Lithuania, averaging 10.9 points and 7.8 rebounds per game. In one EuroLeague season, he averaged 7.7 points and 5.8 rebounds per game.

Sports in brief

Tristan Thompson became the highest Canadian draft selection of basketball's modern era when the Cavaliers took him fourth overall in Thursday's draft.

While Bob Houbregs of Vancouver was selected second overall by the Milwaukee Hawks in 1953, Victoria's Steve Nash's selection at 15th overall in 1996 has been the number to beat in recent years.

"I need some more time for it to sink it, but it's definitely an honour and it shows how much the Canadian basketball culture has grown," said Thompson, a Brampton native.

Upheaval in Philadelphia may set off flurry at draft

► Surprise moves may spark a round of big deals involving several other clubs heading into Minnesota

What was thought to be a straight-forward NHL draft highlighted by Ryan Nugent-Hopkins being picked first by the Edmonton Oilers became more mysterious Thursday after an explosion of trades by the Philadelphia Flyers.

Now the question going into St. Paul, Minn., Friday is not only where the top dozen or so highly regarded 18-year-olds in this year's pool will be selected, but what moves may be made.

Already, the Columbus Blue Jackets have dealt away the eighth overall

"That probably will shake some other things moving, but it doesn't affect anything we're working on."

MAPLE LEAFS GENERAL MANAGER BRIAN BURKE ON THE FLYERS' TRADES

pick, plus 21-year-old Jakob Voracek and a third-rounder, to the Flyers for centre Jeff Carter.

That came just before Philadelphia general manager Paul Holmgren sent Mike Richards to Los Angeles and then signed goalie Ilya Bryzgalov to a $51-million US, nine-year contract.

Columbus GM Scott Howson said his team needs to start making the playoffs and now he has a scoring centre to go with Rick Nash.

"The time has come for us to do something like this obviously to try and get an immediate impact on our team," said Howson.

It was already a tough draft to call, with widely varying opinions among scouts on what order to place the strong crop of prospects that come after Nugent-Hopkins.

The rebuilding Oilers have indicated they will add the playmaking centre from the Red Deer Rebels.

"I joined a rebuilding team in Red Deer a couple of years ago and I really liked that," he said.

"I'd love to join a rebuilding team like that and help them to the ultimate goal, which is the Stanley Cup, eventually."

If the draft goes as expected, Burnaby's Nugent-Hopkins will be the first British Columbian ever to go first-overall.

Plenty of draft possibilities for Leafs

THE HOCKEY NEWS

ADAM PROTEAU
TORONTO@METRONWS.CA

It's that time of year again — NHL draft time — and the Maple Leafs figure to be right in the thick of the action. And when the draft activities kick off Friday and Saturday in Minnesota, Toronto could make a sizable impact in a number of different ways.

For starters, the Leafs have the 25th and 30th overall selections (the first from Philadelphia, the second from Boston) and GM Brian Burke has long been rumored to be interested in moving up in the draft order via a trade.

Toronto could use one or both of those picks, or package a pick with a current roster player, to move up — or they could also make a deal to acquire a front-line NHLer instead.

In any case, once it's the Leafs' turn to pick, they'll have no shortage of areas to address. The organization has improved its overall depth of prospects, but Toronto nevertheless was ranked 28th out of 30 NHL franchises in The Hockey News' 2011 Future Watch ranking of team prospects.

The Leafs could use a prospect or two in goal, even though James Reimer has more or less locked up the starter's role for next season, and even with Jonas Gustavsson and Jussi Rynnas providing competition for him.

Now that Tomas Kaberle has moved on, the Leafs also need some help on defence in terms of a puck-moving, defence-man for the future. But given that they've got Luke Schenn, Dion Phaneuf, Carl Gunnarsson, Keith Aulie and prospect Jake Gardiner in the mix, help for the blue-line may not be a priority.

The same can't be said for help at forward. We all know Toronto doesn't have an A-1 star centre. But even beyond that fact, they need as much depth as possible both at centre and on the wings.

Burke has repeatedly stated that his goal next season is to make the playoffs, and the way the Leafs finished the year, that goal is within reach. Toronto's game-plan on draft day could help them for the future, but don't be shocked if they make a play for the present instead.

PROSPECTS TO KEEP AN EYE ON

JOHN GIBSON, G

► Hoping to follow in the footsteps of predecessor Jack Campbell, who was taken 11th overall by Dallas last year. Gibson is the top-ranked North American goaltender.

NATHAN BEAULIEU, D

► One of four Saint John Sea Dogs players who could be selected in the first round, he counts Drew Doughty and Sam Gagner among his workout companions in the off-season.

SEAN COUTURIER, C

► Once considered a potential No. 1 pick, Couturier has seen his stock dip slightly. However, the QMJHL MVP should still be selected early.

DEVELOPMENT OF MEMORY IN CHILDREN IS YOUR CHILD BETWEEN THE AGES OF 7 AND 16?

We invite you to participate in our study on Children's Memory Development. This study looks at thinking abilities affecting children's memory and how they relate to a child's age.
The study involves two 2-hour sessions and will take place in our lab at York University or another convenient location.
We will compensate you for your time and travel expenses, and children will receive a token of appreciation. Older children will also receive a certificate for volunteer hours.
You will also receive a brief report of your child's performance on the tasks.

For further information or to volunteer for the study, contact Lila Elkhadem, M.A.,

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Don't do anything that might set off a war of words, or a flood of tears with friends or loved ones.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 It may be a carefree time, but don't think you can do as you please.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 There's money to be made this weekend, but if you take silly chances you could also lose money.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 This is your time of year. You must make the most of it, but you must also be conscious of your limits.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 23 High expectations are good but you also need to keep your feet on the ground.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24-Sept. 22 You may think you can take on the world but you wouldn't be wise to expect too much of yourself now.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 The moment success starts to go to your head is the moment your luck will start heading south.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 It's not like you to be outrageous but you've just got to do something to break the cycle of boredom.

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca ♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Don't be shocked if someone you could always count on decides not to go along with your plans.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 If you want to get things done, you'll have to work closely with others.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Slow down a bit and catch your breath. If you don't, health-wise, that's asking for trouble.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. Be selective about your ambitions — and be ruthless with how you manage your time. SALLY BROMPTON
